

MASSACHUSETTS AIRPORT MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION SEEKING EXEC. DIRECTOR

Did you know that there are thirty eight (38) public use airports across the Commonwealth of Massachusetts? These airports come in all shapes and sizes! Logan International Airport in Boston, MA connects Massachusetts to the world and is consistently one of the busiest airports in the country. But airports in Massachusetts go far beyond Boston. The many municipal and regional airports across the Commonwealth serve airlines, corporate aviation and recreation pilots.

Back in 1972, representatives from numerous airports got together and decided to form a group to represent the collective interests of the public use airports in Massachusetts. This group would become known as the Massachusetts Airport Management Association or MAMA. Fast forward to today and MAMA membership includes airport management professionals and representatives from the vast majority of public use airports within Massachusetts. In addition, membership consists of individuals from various engineering, planning, environmental and architectural firms, regulatory and funding agency representatives and a variety of other vendors that provide services and equipment to the aviation community.

The mission of MAMA is to promote general aviation by fostering a healthy state airport system. In order to strive towards this mission MAMA follows three key objectives:

- To strengthen MAMA and broaden its representation with legislative leaders on a federal and state level
- To increase public awareness of the economic and social benefits that General Aviation provides to the Commonwealth

- To maintain the viability of the Massachusetts Department of Transportation Aviation Division

For more than 10 years, Dave Dinneen, Airport Manager of the Marshfield Municipal Airport, has served as the organization's Executive Director. During that time the organization has achieved some great things. With Dave deciding to step down, there are large shoes left to fill and the MAMA Board of Directors are in the process of doing just that.

Right now the MAMA Board is searching for the next Executive Director for the organization. The opportunity is part time and requires the right fit, someone who is passionate about aviation and will be able to serve as the voice for the Massachusetts Airport Management Association membership.
